Chiron: Psychology

Until you make the unconscious conscious,
it will direct your life,
and you will call it fate.

--Carl Jung

Chiron: Psychology

“wherever Chiron is found there is a tendency to externalize things which need be taken inwardly and symbolically. The result can be a relentless struggle, an enactment of an attempt to heal ourselves, to ‘get’ something we feel we lack and which we misguidedly imagine will assuage our pain. Strong social, professional or political agendas, where we confront collective issues may be infused with the attempt to vicariously heal our inner suffering. Giving up this struggle accords with Chiron surrendering his demigod status; transubstantiation into his immortal self followed. This corresponds with finding the inner way, through reflecting directly on our experience of our own life.”

Melanie Reinhart, Chiron and the Healing Journey

“In this context Chiron represents an internalized authority that is socially responsible and aware of the limits of human mortality, yet also committed to individual growth and service to others.”

“Chiron’s healing journey enables us to develop a consciousness both rational and intuitive, rooted in feeling and sensation. We retrieve our ‘lower half’ from the animal kingdom, or from other races of people on to whom we have projected it; we also retrieve our ‘upper half’ from the mentors, religious authorities and gurus in whom it might have been invested. We come home to ourselves, connected to Heaven and Earth.”

“Chiron signals us to undertake our own unique journey of awakening which underlies the meaning of our lives. During this process, we will encounter many imponderables, paradoxes and unanswerable questions. Certainty stifles the soul, while the heart opens where the wisdom of uncertainty is allowed. Whenever we think we have figured out ‘The Answer’, we risk painting ourselves into the corner of our own unconscious hopes and fears. The deeper certainties, which bring rest to the soul, are inexpressible, but unmistakable. Chiron’s journey is about learning to trust this without having to prove or demonstrate it.”

Chiron: Owning Your Gifts

"We ask ourselves, 'Who am I to be brilliant, gorgeous, talented, fabulous?' Actually, who are you not to be? You are a child of God. Your playing small does not serve the world. There is nothing enlightened about shrinking so that other people won't feel insecure around you. We are all meant to shine, as children do. We were born to make manifest the glory of God that is within us. It's not just in some of us; it's in everyone. And as we let our own light shine, we unconsciously give other people permission to do the same. As we are liberated from our own fear, our presence automatically liberates others."

Marianne Williamson
